MESSAGE

I am happy to know that All India Induction Furnaces Association (AIIFA) is organizing a one day national conference on “Strengthening Green Steel Production: Building Pillars for New India” on 24th November, 2017 at New Delhi.

In today's competitive business environment, improving competitiveness in production, innovation, cost reduction, quality product and research & development have become essential for survival of industries. The industry also needs to take care of the environmental issues as well as depleting reserve of raw materials.

We have to gear up to meet the challenges of tomorrow to reach higher production and productivity levels while being most competitive. Continuous technological up-gradation and exploring alternate processes are also essential for improving competitiveness.

I hope that the deliberations in the National Conference will be very helpful and informative to the Secondary Steel sector.

I extend my best wishes to the organizers for success of the event.
